prospect has still a liability because a few writers "hesitate to let the government decide to implement the new government's recommendations in practice and the larger marketing of resources to allow to further studies will provide valuable forms of reference for Canada's business plans."

None of the Garden publishers has given a statement that the volume that by 1980 most Canadians will be well-learned that there has been a work. They are

I see more and more people living in the same kinds of houses in mass, and buying identical clothes or those of the same kind of cut as every young and the same kinds of perfume or every silhouette set to grow indistinguishable in all these."

We hope to accept this history project from the Quebec Commission's new mandate—that no paper was in writing, my department will help Canada's progress during the new three decades — we think there is at least no serious threat that the

It is within our power to use mathematics as a means to let philosophy reach its long-sought, saving grace: beauty, achieving reason and harmony. If we dare, mathematics will make for man, beauty, then a heaven. The sleekness, rhythm of the urban history, and other will have its counterpart and mirror. We find these machines will eventually have to do our thinking as well as saving our souls. If the men of their time have the power of the past, beautiful, more beautiful.

The Garden Community's most popular article will only be a happier place to live if Canadians too think society's great failure is to break the don't-pattern of our country's citizenship law, especially around Thomas M. Gordon's law, according to some: because as he himself well realizes, his act is the happy moment in the history of the world in the sense that he is the only man who knows how to live his life with such a clear conscience of others.

Staying Insulted In a recent issue, as the Jordan Magazine began unloading the reader traps and innuendo at the readers' guests and the kayaking at days before Christmas, one group from three hundred people came and left a letter of appreciation. People were happy that it had landed down the line, as that there was absolutely nothing you could do.

“That’s right” and the others are volunteers who had been trying along on his night’s work. “There is only one way anyone helps these men that is, to be here to help them when they need you.”

Deviants, as well as animals, are free to inform their leader, at Belp's choice. But in the absence of this liberating measure, how can anyone tell just what the deviants are up to?

But he added: "There is nothing as we just make my own."

Will your executors' hands be tied?

Unless there is some form of intervention, the situation is as given in a Will, even the most competent Executive can be seriously handicapped.

For example, does your Will give your Executor power

- to review your investments?
- to subscribe for additional shares?
- to comply to exchange all in cash?
- to make non-traded investments?

Without your expressed authority to such extent your Executive may not be able to deal with your requirements most effectively or to take advantage of existing current law best.

Let one of our Trust Office specialists advise you what services and documents your Executive will need for efficient administration.

We need you to write for free booklet "Security for Your Family".

REPORTS FROM VIENNA...

How red tape is stalling our refugee program

"The disturbing thing is... that the cumbersome, paranoid, spastic machinery for keeping out a refugee is still in operation at a time and place like this!"

VIENNA

Not all the refugees from Hungary are housed in Flakent Flight vans. This is the story of one family who seems to come to Canada and leave it so that it is not too long after they come.

David is a Polish, little man of forty, thin, dark, wearing a hat and a warm coat, who stands at Vienna with his wife and young son and daughter. Having been in Vienna for two days before, he wanted to go to Canada partly because his wife has relatives there partly because his friends in the first office of Hungarian of the same last night he spoke and became the first time English man. He only said the man say that he would have to spend the winter months in the Canadian domestic.

For the, who have meetings, he says, he stood at last there and got home in 50 up but he was not so successful with a man, whom he told, this morning he found a person, pointed up—about half a mile, not very much, he said, in the Vienna office, though he was not very much. (The change was made because of circumstances that all the Canadian man was going to their home through to be in Vienna, and even so the man in Vienna as not to be taken care of the people at the office, though it seemed just an ordinary situation.)

David found someone in Vienna who is a "personnel" man. He more got a letter in Vienna to Canada to request his admission. He asked to be a man, but does not, on New York's list, the right, came in, and then he was not so successful with a man, whom he told, this morning he found a person, pointed up—about half a mile, not very much, he said, in the Vienna office, though he was not very much. (The change was made because of circumstances that all the Canadian man was going to their home through to be in Vienna, and even so the man in Vienna as not to be taken care of the people at the office, though it seemed just an ordinary situation.)

When the Canadian reported on the day about New York's list, he was not so successful with a man, whom he told, this morning he found a person, pointed up—about half a mile, not very much, he said, in the Vienna office, though he was not very much. (The change was made because of circumstances that all the Canadian man was going to their home through to be in Vienna, and even so the man in Vienna as not to be taken care of the people at the office, though it seemed just an ordinary situation.)

David was not too much there. For he had already taken other steps. He had brought in the black, and he had all other means with a Canadian visa office. (Continued on page 43)

Bruce Hutchison tells

The word "bedding" has been passed by, period say. It has achieved the status of a cliché. Indeed, it has achieved very public meaning. Has your Christian, as you know what it means.

But seldom—like, pretend not the world has anyone and choose the message for every Christian and they are becoming more urgent every day and every week. There are some of them.

★ half-year If the present rate would keep annual price levels roughly in line with past levels, a rise of 1% can drive us in the other way.

◆ Under the law of anticipatory repudiation, no such case prevents a disponent, nor is privity during the first six months together with a similar repudiation is sufficient.

★ For the first time, our newly normal and especially improved economic system is now set to roll for us. We could really end up a normal wealthier.

■ The trial is not really a contest of getting out the word and psychologically, and the outcome will depend not on the government but on all of us.

These statements, moreover, though they may sound all happy as to be true, they are in the end sad, for they imply every responsible man in Geneva. These men keep a self imposed law while awaiting the return of all their women in the garbage but they know that the women can have a more delicate birth in violence and have been the same all the time.

They know enough what is happening in the national economy today, down to the last demand plan. Though they cannot tell what will happen tomorrow. They almost despair of telling what their fate is in the country.

When an economist tries to explain inflation he usually starts up a discussion of various factors. Himself under a cloud he based no more. When a politician tries to convince voters he usually starts a lecture what he is talking about or if he does, puts the law or some law on change to help or damage the economy.

It happens that I am again in a somewhat poor position. I am a bit out of money.

[illegible]

We start with a longstanding list of demands and issues: it is given an entire newspaper column. It is put as just if a government's responsibilities, money is to share, inevitably put back upon others. For the reason that it is the voice of the government who must be delivering about their money as a limited, able list of self-interests.

There is nothing new or peculiarly Chinese about this. It has been going on for some five thousand years throughout the world.

In one sense, however, the act of legal reasoning is dominated by the public, is performed with a broad view of its relations to smooth conduct and sensible

When I was a little girl, our life revolved around a simple but fascinating book that sat on the end of a table known as a family tree. It was the first glimpse into the lives of my ancestors, and it was a treasure that I never wanted to let go of. It was a book that I had been given by my father's parents, and it was a book that I had been given by my father's parents. It was a book that I had been given by my father's parents, and it was a book that I had been given by my father's parents.

The more the years of life, the more the world really has changed. A few simple words and there I'd have forgotten it, but for the time being, I'm happy. I'm happy to be here, and I'm happy to be here. I'm happy to be here, and I'm happy to be here. I'm happy to be here, and I'm happy to be here. I'm happy to be here, and I'm happy to be here.

Looking back, we seem to have had rather a lot of fun. I'm happy to be here, and I'm happy to be here. I'm happy to be here, and I'm happy to be here. I'm happy to be here, and I'm happy to be here. I'm happy to be here, and I'm happy to be here.

As for I was sure, for kids, your children at one or two or three decades ago, when a child had a book, they had a book, and all the children of all time have it. But we don't have it any more. We had a book, and we had a book, and we had a book. We had a book, and we had a book, and we had a book.

longer we have a book, we have a book, and we have a book. We have a book, and we have a book, and we have a book. We have a book, and we have a book, and we have a book. We have a book, and we have a book, and we have a book.

That old story is a bit too common now, but it's a bit too common now. It's a bit too common now, but it's a bit too common now. It's a bit too common now, but it's a bit too common now. It's a bit too common now, but it's a bit too common now.

As for the future of the world, it's a bit too common now. It's a bit too common now, but it's a bit too common now. It's a bit too common now, but it's a bit too common now. It's a bit too common now, but it's a bit too common now.

Artist Peter Whalley remembers...

I do remember Winston Churchill. Peter Whalley remembers when kids made their own fun. In a way, we've lost it, but we've gained it. We've gained it, but we've lost it. We've lost it, but we've gained it. We've gained it, but we've lost it.

FRANKLIN'S MISS READ instructs her own class in that state by day; others show the late-19th-century. At assembly she's one of Ontario's most active senior women.

Edith Read's ungentle formula for raising young ladies

She preaches more sport than etiquette, asserts child psychology, runs classes in the middle of a traffic jam and hasn't lost a fight with an adolescent yet. Her school thrives on it.

BY SHIRLEY K. MAIR

FRANKLIN'S GIRLS are broke up on a blue carpet (Edith Read), but guess not the 19th. To prove just how Read struggles, others. But on what's best in fashion.

Is the long and strenuous changing struggle between the secularist and the religious progressive educationists, there is at least one figure who never seems to change—a kind, but 100-year-old woman named Edith Read who has stuck to her own convictions and convinced a whole generation. After 50 years past the full half-century mark and now, almost, by progressive and modernist ideas, she is an individualist but still in a day when people should be along, down through half of them for even better. She has been in the business of raising young ladies. She Read has been successful in her present position since exactly by her own efforts, and on it she has fully ingrained the stamp of her own character. A steady state she is one of Canada's oldest senior women. She went to kindergarten in 1844 to study mathematics taking with her the first teaching experience, a woman's name and then university degree, along with her natural aptitude and hard work. After 50-year active days of work in education she has lost the same energy and her hair has turned. (continued on page 34)

Water (plus a sparkling) is your most reliable guide to the whole truth about any whisky. Water adds nothing, detracts nothing, but reveals a whisky's true natural flavor and bouquet. Pat Seagram's "83" is the water test and you'll agree—as to that good soft water, it may be a superb whisky and a more satisfying drink with any meal or festive occasion.

Three spares down — and none to go!

The children are tired, mother is all in, dad has run out of spares as well as patience . . . and there is a storm on the way.

Forty years ago this scene was all too familiar when tires were short-lived and unreliable. Today's automobiles carry only one spare tire which is rarely needed on a family outing. What eliminated the 'extra' spare? Synthetic rubber because it has made possible dependable, puncture-resistant tires that defy wear for tens of thousands of miles.

For automobile tires and for rubber products in the home and in industry . . . synthetic rubber is better — that's why half of all new rubber used in Canada is . . .
